The fall demonstration day was a day full of beauty in the skies, cold crisp air in the morning and warming up nicely into the afternoon. It provided a perfect day to be out and about observing the demonstrations on the hill top and resting for the lectures in the nearby shelter.

With 120 attendees, 41 companies and 11 exhibitors we had a great turn out that filled the seats to hear the lectures started off by Tommy Pierce with Goulds Water Technology and in the afternoon Mike Heatwole with May Supply Company. Demonstrations were held out at the well site where Wayne Fenton, host and owner of Fenton Well Drilling, narrated the day as his pump crew provided the elbow grease to remove and install the pump system. Ty Davidson with Central Virginia Well Fracturing added to the mix during the hydro-developing portion of the day by blowing open the iron laden fractures with high water pressure. Thick orange water poured out of the borehole and samples were taken to test the mineral levels. The day ended with the reinstallation of the pump equipment for a second yield and drawdown test which extended over the following two days.

Check out the follow up course at the winter conference 2014! Thank you to all of the attendees, exhibitors, speakers, and volunteers! Be sure to check out all the photos on Facebook.

REGISTRATION IS OPEN

Join us this winter at our annual conference! Staying in central Virginia for one more year, our three day event will include two days of trade show hours and over ten hours of continuing education.

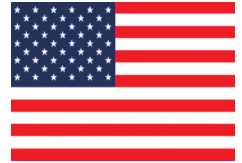

Stepping back into time, we are honoring past traditions and taking a peek at the original equipment and those who used them. We still need more stories and images to display. If you have a story or family business photos that you would like to submit, please send image copies and short narratives to the VWWA office by mail or email.
